Cities release up to 70% of greenhouse gas emissions, consume 80% of food and produce 50% of global waste. The circular economy represents an opportunity to rethink design, production, maintenance and consumption models, services and infrastructure.

The Circular Cities Conference will highlight how G20 countries can support cities in accelerating the transition towards the circular economy.